Solution

- The Most Important Differences Between Strategy Formulation and Strategy Implementation Strategy formulation and strategy implementation are two different things.
- The term "strategic formulation" refers to the process of developing a strategy. The execution of the chosen strategy is referred to as strategy implementation.
- Strategy Formulation is concerned with putting all forces in place before to an action, whereas Strategy Implementation is concerned with controlling those forces throughout execution.

- Strategy formulation is an intellectual process, whereas strategy implementation is a tactical one.
- Top management is in charge of strategy formulation. Middle management, on the other hand, is in charge of strategy implementation.
- Intuition is required for strategy formulation. Strategy Implementation, on the other hand, necessitates motivating abilities.
- Formulating a strategy is a business activity. Strategy Implementation, on the other hand, is a bureaucratic activity.
- Strategy Formulation is about planning, but Strategy Implementation is about taking actions.